

GERMANY HOLDS FIRM TO SUBSEA PROGRAM; U. S. ENTERS PERIOD OF TENSE VIGILANCE

CHANCE GONE THAT BERLIN MAY RETRACT

GERMAN GOVERNMENT DETERMINED TO ENFORCE ANNOUNCED PLAN OF SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

REGRET U. S. DECISION

Disappointed at Attitude Taken by President Wilson, Germany Bears No Animosity Toward America, Says High Official.

BULLETIN.
Berlin, Feb. 5.—Ambassador Gerard this morning received instructions to request his passport. His plans for departure are not yet decided.

Bulletin.
Berlin via London, Feb. 5.—According to information obtained in official quarters, there is no prospect of any modification of orders to submarine.

Bulletin.
Berlin via London, Feb. 5.—United States Ambassador Gerard has practically decided to return to the United States from a Spanish port.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Berlin, Sunday, Feb. 4, via London, Feb. 5.—Peaceful continuance of German-American relations after the departure of the respective ambassadors at Washington and Berlin in the sense indicated by President Wilson in his address to congress, appears to be very slight, judging by all the information, some of the highest authorities, gathered by the Associated Press.

No Modification Possible.
It was stated positively in high official circles that the German orders for the conduct of a submarine war could not and would not be modified. In Germany the determination to prosecute the submarine war was absolute and final and the only security for shipping was in avoidance of the prohibited zone.

Germany, so the Associated Press was informed, resorted to this measure after the "staggering" rejection by entente powers of peace overtures, and only after the fullest consideration of the desperate situation in defense of its threatened interests. Germany cannot relinquish this weapon—the only one promising a speedy end to the war—reluctant as Germany was to take this step.

The government had hoped that the United States would see it in "this light" and was and is actuated by no animosity toward the United States in determining Germany's attitude, therefore, so the high informant of the Associated Press continued, is very keenly disappointed and grieved by the terms of Mr. Wilson's message, but the course upon which it has determined. "This official added:

"We can only hope and trust that American ships and the lives of American citizens will be spared the danger zone laid down in the German memorandum."

Treaty Still Holds.
The Associated Press learns authoritatively that Germany will propose to Ambassador Gerard a special re-affirmation of the Prussian-American treaty of 1825, allowing navigation in case of war, nine months in which to settle their affairs, and leave hostile countries. This step, possibly insure American ships and German citizens in America, against incursion if hostilities break out, and would prevent a precipitate exodus from either country, such as was general in Europe when the war began.

The Associated Press also pointed out to a correspondent of the Associated Press that the ancient treaties between the United States and Prussia were still in effect and that they should not be invalidated by the outbreak of hostilities. This the official said, meant that as far as he was informed, Germany certainly would hold to these treaties and there would be no question of invading Americans in Germany in case of war.

States of Americans have applied for visas for the necessary military permission to leave the country.

German Consuls to Quit U. S.
Washington, Feb. 5.—Arrangements are being made for all German consuls and consular officials in the United States to accompany Count Bernstorff and the German embassy staff out of the country. The party—more than 300 in all—probably will go via Cuba and Spain.

ACTIVITY REPORTED ON THE SOMME FRONT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Paris, Feb. 5.—South of the Somme a German raid near Barleux last evening was repulsed with heavy losses. The French made several incursions into the German lines in the Chambrille and Pont-a-Mousson sectors and in Alsace, without success. Otherwise the night was calm along the front. Colmar, Alsace, was bombarded by French aircraft.

Germans Retake Trenches.
Berlin, Feb. 5.—German troops in a counter attack yesterday recaptured the British held near portion of the trench east of Beaumont on the Somme front, that had recently been lost, the war office announced today. The British failed in a heavy attack on Beaumont the afternoon, and in a second assault at night.

Wilson Asks Neutrals To Stand Back of U. S.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The president's invitation to neutrals to follow his action in breaking off relations with Germany was contained in instructions to American diplomats to announce the break with Germany to the governments to which they are accredited. It was contained in the following note:

"You will immediately notify the government to which you are accredited that the United States, because of the German government's recent announcement of its intention to renew unrestricted submarine warfare, has no choice but to follow the course laid down in its note of April 18, 1916 (the Sussex note)."

It has, therefore, recalled the American ambassador from Berlin and has delivered passports to the German ambassador to the United States.

Say also that the president is reluctant to believe Germany actually will carry out her threat against neutral commerce, but if it be done the president will ask congress to authorize use of the national power to protect American citizens engaged in their peaceful and lawful errands on the seas.

The course taken is, in the president's view, entirely in accordance with the principles he enunciated in his address to the senate Jan. 12 (the address proposing a world league for peace).

He believes it will make for the peace of the world if other neutral powers can find it possible to take similar action.

Report fully and immediately on the reception of this announcement and upon the suggestion as to similar action.

WARNING IS GIVEN AMERICAN STEAMER SUNK IN WAR ZONE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, Feb. 5.—The sinking of the American steamer Housatonic by a German submarine, which took place on Saturday, did not constitute an overt act, since the vessel was warned and the crew safely landed according to official advice received by the department from the American consul at Plymouth, England. The crew was given an hour in which to leave the ship. The vessel carried a cargo of wheat for the British government. The crew of thirty-seven men was towed by the submarine for ninety minutes, when a British patrol boat sighted which took over the sailors.

Word of the sinking of the Housatonic was received at the Gazette office shortly after four o'clock Saturday afternoon in a bulletin from the Associated Press. It contained the information that the ship had been torpedoed by a submarine off the Scilly Islands. The news, coming as it did on top of the break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, caused general concern.

CANCEL ORDERS FOR RETURN OF MILITIA

San Antonio, Feb. 5.—Orders for the homecoming of the Second Wisconsin Infantry at San Antonio and fifth Maryland Infantry at Eagle Pass, have been cancelled. Whether approaching movements of other national guards be suspended, leave the border will also be halted, as the border will be held at national guard headquarters today.

The second Wisconsin Infantry at Camp Wilson was to have left today for Fort Sheridan, but has been notified that when orders reach camp today for the regiment to remain there, the men, forty per cent of whom are of German descent, turned out and gave patriotic demonstration, pledging themselves to any service to which the United States might call.

NATION'S FINANCES ON STRONG FOOTING

Washington, Feb. 5.—The comptroller of currency today advised congress by submitting his annual report that the United States now seems "entrenched financially almost as firmly as it is possible for a human government to be." National bank deposits are given as $590,642,461 for the last fiscal year, net earnings $157,543,547, an increase in the latter of $30,500,000. Practically the whole world is in debt to the United States, steadily increasing obligations. Our wealth is piling up with wonderful rapidity, but to do our proper work in the world and to protect and enlarge our interests, we may before long need every dollar of these resources.

LEGAL BASIS WILL GUIDE U. S. POLICY

CONDUCT OF AMERICAN GOVERNMENT WILL BE PLACED ABOVE REPROACH DURING PERIOD OF WAITING.

WARN ALL OFFICIALS

Federal Officers in All Parts of Country Instructed to Do Nothing Not Strictly With Their Legal Right.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, Feb. 5.—While the United States awaits the issue of war or peace, President Wilson has taken steps that the conduct of the government during the tense period of waiting shall be one of calm deliberation and beyond criticism.

The American government, it was stated officially, will be very careful to see that Germany and all other foreign governments will have no just cause for complaint.

All Officials Warned.
General instructions have been issued to federal officials in all parts of the country to avoid hasty action and do nothing not strictly legal and within the province of the government.

The government, it was pointed out, has no legal right to take over war bound merchant ships in American harbors.

The legal rights must be the basis of conduct of all federal officers under the announced policy of the government.

No matter what other nations may do in the present emergency, it was stated that the United States will adhere strictly to law, and do nothing under stress of excitement which would not be legal to do in ordinary times.

As outlined in the highest official quarters, the policy of the government will be to act on principle, rather than on the ground of expediency. The federal authorities will be expected by President Wilson to avoid any act that might be considered questionable.

Speeds Up Congress.
Still fervently hoping for peace, but taking every possible step to prepare the country for war if it must come, President Wilson today appealed to congress to dispose quickly of all routine business, appropriation bills and pending legislation and clear the decks for action to meet any eventualities.

The president wants congress ready to act if it becomes necessary for him to address the congress and ask aid to address the resources of the United States to protect American ships and lives in their peaceful and lawful errands on the high seas.

The sailing of American ships in the English harbors reported this morning brought an air of relief to the tensely which has prevailed everywhere since the breaking of diplomatic relations. Officials still hope for peace, but they are prepared to meet any eventuality.

All officials realize that the situation has resolved itself into an advance in the United States to prevent any overt act may come soon or be long delayed. Meanwhile they are putting every agency of the government in motion to meet any eventuality.

Break With Austria Near.
While officials refuse to admit Austria's formal announcement of her accession to Germany's declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare has received officially, there is reason for believing it is now before the government, and that appropriate action is being considered.

The Prussian-American treaty of 1825 is one of the first things President Wilson will have to decide as a result of the breaking of relations with Germany.

Originally negotiated and known as the treaty of 1795, all its terms were included in the later treaty of 1825, which expired in 1905. The United States and American officials ever believed its terms would be invoked when Germany suddenly turned upon the United States.

Ship Wm. F. Frye early in the war. Examination of the terms of the almost forgotten provisions that it permits the United States from confiscating German warbound ships in American harbors, in case of war, it also contains the provisions for the departure of the provisions from either country mentioned in today's Berlin dispatches.

Confers With Aides.
President Wilson today conferred with Secretary Baker of the war department and Secretary Daniels of the navy, discussed expediting legislation to empower the government to take possession of ships, and other facilities for hurrying the work of preparation if it became necessary.

Tense Vigil Begins.
Grimly preparing and with an air of conviction that the nation's course will be shaped for as Germany makes effective her announced means of unrestricted submarine warfare, the United States government has begun a tense vigil that may be broken only temporarily, or may be long drawn out, despite the severance of diplomatic relations.

President Wilson's long struggle to preserve the country's peace has not yet been lost. He still hopes not only that hostilities will be avoided, but that neutral powers, adding their voices to that of the United States, will unite the major moral force of the world to compel peace in Europe.

Proclamation:

"To the Citizens of Janesville:
"Our country is now facing a grave and serious problem of international strife."
"Our President has delivered his message to a joint session of congress, formally announcing the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany."

"As a God-fearing and peace-loving community we earnestly hope and fervently pray that no serious consequences such as war will ensue. But as a manifestation of approval of the acts of our President and our government, I would commend the raising of the flag upon all public buildings and urge the display of the flag everywhere and upon all occasions, to show to the President and our government that we are a one and united American people in the immortal principles which seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and justice and an unimpeded life."

Wants U. S. Colors Displayed.
New York, Feb. 5.—National Scout Commissioner Dan Beard of Flushing, L. I., tonight issued an appeal to the 250,000 Boy Scouts of America to fly the stars and stripes from their homes.

With distinct anxiety cable and wireless dispatches bearing on Germany's newly announced war plans are being watched for the first indication of American lives lost or ships sunk without warning.

It now appears that the sinking of the American steamer Housatonic Saturday by a submarine was not an illegal act, since she carried a contraband cargo of wheat. Warning was given and the crew saved.

Release American Sailors.
Officials today heard with considerable satisfaction the report that the German government had ordered the immediate release of American sailors taken from British ships by German raiders in the Atlantic, as demanded by the United States shortly before this action was taken.

This action was interpreted in some quarters as an indication of a conciliatory attitude. The situation in regard to Austria has not changed up to today, and it is not known what the Austrian government might not find it necessary to ratify formally the submarine policy of Germany and in that case the United States might see conflict between the United States and Austria.

Chapters of the Red Cross throughout the United States today have prepared from the national offices to prepare immediate relief work.

No Ship Seizures.
Government officials authorized a statement denying reports that seizures of American merchant ships in American harbors is contemplated. The department of justice also is making secret preparations for the seizure of German ships in American harbors.

No actual war preparations have been made by the war department, although many unusual precautions are being taken and plans are being drawn up for any eventualities.

Order Equipment East.
Quincy, Ill., Feb. 5.—Orders have been received here from Chicago by officers of the local division Illinois naval reserves to rush its entire gun equipment to the east.

A day and night guard has been placed on the U. S. S. Somers, training vessel of the local division, stationed here in the harbor to prevent any unauthorized members of the local division and the eight regular naval men on the Somers are holding themselves in readiness for an immediate call.

Brazil Plans Protest.
Rio Janeiro, Feb. 5.—The note of protest, which Brazil will dispatch to Germany in answer to her declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare, has been received here. The note is not until after an exchange of views between some of the American governments. President Wenceslau Braz will summon a special meeting of the cabinet to take action.

Brazil to Take Action.
London, Feb. 5.—Reuter's Rio Janeiro correspondent says there is reason to believe the reply of the Brazilian government to the German note respecting naval warfare will be in harmony with the attitude of the United States.

Chile Approves Stand.
Santiago, Chile, Feb. 5.—President Wilkerson today toward Germany is approved in Chile, says the Mercurio. It adds:

"Latin America is bound to the United States with strong ties, today more than ever before, and must support President Wilson."

The newspaper urges the Chilean government to find a common human basis for the action of South America, and to second the action of Mr. Wilson.

Local Youth, Minor, Aspires to Ministry at Own Expense and Now Gets Mother's Consent to Wed.

"High cost of living, the maintenance of a wife and the fact that he is working his way through theological schools for the ministry on his wages as a machinist at Canton, Ohio, and not to mention the fact that he is yet to see his twenty-first year, have no terrors for Judd L. Cowan, the twenty-year-old son of Mrs. Mary G. Pankhurst of this city. Judd got his education from Miss Frances M. Hall, deputy to Howard W. Lee, and the guiding cupid of the county clerk's office. His mother appeared with him and gave her consent that he should marry Miss Maude L. Brown, aged twenty, of the town of Plymouth.

SENATE RESOLUTION ENDORSES POSITION TAKEN BY PRESIDENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, Feb. 5.—A resolution endorsing President Wilson's action in severing diplomatic relations with Germany, was introduced in the senate today by Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, emphasizing particularly the president's expressed desire to maintain peace.

The resolution goes over for a day under the rule for action tomorrow, and it was agreed today without debate.

The text of the resolution follows: "Whereas the president has, for the reasons stated in his address delivered to congress in joint session on Feb. 3, 1917, severed diplomatic relations with the Imperial German government, and the Imperial German government has, in violation of the American ambassador at Berlin, and by handing his passports to the German ambassador at Washington, and

Whereas, notwithstanding this severance of diplomatic intercourse, the president has expressed his desire to avoid conflict with the Imperial German government, and

Whereas, the president declared in this said address that if in his judgment an occasion should arise for further action in premises on the part of the government of the United States, he would submit the matter to the congress and ask the authority of congress to use such measures as he might deem necessary for protection of American assets and persons of the United States, and

Therefore, he it resolved by the senate, that the senate approves the action taken by the president as set forth in his address delivered before the joint session of the congress, as stated above."

ORDER BARS TRANSFER OF U. S. SHIPS

PRESIDENT ISSUES PROCLAMATION PROHIBITING AMERICAN SHIP OWNERS FROM CHANGING REGISTRY.

TAKE ALL PRECAUTION

German Seamen Are Requested to Remain on Their Vessels in New York Harbor.—Liner New York Leaves Liverpool.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, Feb. 5.—The American line received a cablegram today saying that the steamship New York, carrying passengers, left Liverpool at 5 p. m. Saturday. She is the first American passenger ship to sail since Germany promulgated her new submarine warfare.

Washington, Feb. 5.—President Wilson today issued a proclamation under the authority of the shipping act, prohibiting American ship owners from transferring their vessels to any other registry.

In his proclamation the president pointed out that a national emergency exists and many ship owners of the United States are permitting their vessels to pass the German zone waters and to foreign trade "in which we do not participate, and from which they cannot be brought back to serve the needs of our water-borne commerce without the intervention of governments of foreign nations."

Detain Germans on Ships.
New York, Feb. 5.—Nearly 2,000 officers and men, remnants of the crews of the twenty German ships which were laid up here at the beginning of the war, are virtually prisoners today on board their vessels. The federal authorities explained that the German seamen were "not forcibly detained, but simply requested to remain on their ships."

Collector Malone of the port of New York denied that the German ships were being laid up here at the beginning of the war, and now in command of the port, the Hamburg-American line announced that it would apply today for papers as an American citizen.

The steamship St. Louis of the American line looked to sail last Saturday night, but her pier today. Officials of the line said that the St. Louis would be held here waiting further advice from Washington.

Honolulu, Feb. 5.—The interned German gunboat, Geier, has been burned in the harbor here. The boat was set on fire by the crew according to local authorities. The Geier, 1,604 tons, was interned here shortly after the war began.

Interned Ships Damaged.
Manila, Feb. 5.—Customs officers, aided by navy experts, have discovered every one of the seventeen German ships anchored here have been extensively damaged.

Saved Japanese Crew.
The navy authorities at six o'clock this evening seized the seventeen German merchant ships anchored in Manila Bay. All the German crews were removed.

German Consuls in U. S. and American Consuls in Germany Holding Their Places by Virtue of Treaties Continue to Perform Their Usual Functions, but they no longer work under supervision of diplomatic officers.

There is no change in commercial relations, already badly crippled by the war, and individual and corporations may continue their usual affairs, provided they do not deal in contraband, and their obligations as binding as ever. The ships still rest in the ports of the United States, but they have no facility for direct intervention of their diplomatic officers. They may, however, be represented by the diplomats, but the diplomats are not to care for the interests of the respective governments.

There should be no sequestration or confiscation of private property; either in the United States or Germany, although it may be taken for use under certain circumstances.

Can Use Interned Ships.
The ninety-five or more German merchant ships tied up in American harbors since the beginning of the war may be used by the United States, but the German owners ultimately must be compensated. The ships are scattered in the ports of continental United States, Porto Rico, and the Pacific island possessions, including the Philippines, comprise some of the best known ocean liners.

Only in case of war is there possibility of their being absolutely confiscated, and even then such action is doubtful, for the United States, in the world court, has the right to have the leading exponent of the inalienability of private property.

Mails will continue to move under the Geneva convention and other existing special conventions. There should be no restrictions upon the free movement of travelers between the two countries other than the fixed policy of the United States to issue no passports to Americans wishing to visit the war zone unless they have pressing business there.

In fact, so far as individuals are concerned, the status remains practically unchanged by a break in diplomatic relations.

Upon the conduct of Americans in Germany and the conduct of Germans in the United States, the attitude of the respective government regarding them.

There is, however, one relation between the United States and Germany which ceases through diplomatic rupture. It is the humanitarian task of

CLAIM BAD CHIMNEY AT OESTREICH HOME CAUSED $2,500 LOSS

Saturday Afternoon Blaze Does Big Damage to Upper Story and Contents of Residence.
Fire alleged to have been caused by a defective chimney resulted in damage totaling between two thousand and twenty-five hundred dollars in the home of Otto A. Oestreich, partner in the law firm of Jeffers, Mount, Oestreich and Avery, and divorcee, located at 1115 North Vista avenue, between 7th and 8th streets, Saturday afternoon. The loss estimate covers the damage to the house and the contents.
Practically the entire second story of the residence was gutted by the flames, which Chief Klein of the fire department is led to believe originated in the attic over the kitchen, where a large collection of discarded bed clothing, clothes, books and broken furniture was stored. When the firemen arrived flames had already broken through the roof above this store-room and when they entered the house and ascended to the second story, a large amount of accumulation in the attic balked their progress for many minutes. It was impossible to successfully battle the fire from the roof. At this time it was seen that the woodwork and attic debris nearest the chimney leading from the furnace had been the first destroyed.
The fire is practically an exact parallel to that of two weeks ago which gutted the upper floor of the residence of D. J. Barry on West Pleasant street and was discovered in a similar manner. Mr. Oestreich said that his nine-year-old daughter went upstairs and found the fire eating through the ceiling, as did Miss "Babe" Barry.
The time of the fire, late in the afternoon, while not bitter cold, nevertheless was extremely disagreeable for the fire fighters, who suffered considerably. After an hour's work it was under control and for the next hour only a small stream, converted by the pump on the big truck from a hydrant lead, was played on the burning embers remaining.
Most of the contents of the second story were removed by neighbors. The front yard was littered with household effects soon after the firemen arrived. Little of that in the store-room was saved, as it was left in the residence and not destroyed by the flames was spoiled by water. Near by neighbors opened their homes to the Oestreichs and for the next few days they remained with Rush G. Imeson at 1014 Clark street.
Three minor accidents occurred as a result of the blaze.
Raymond Tift, 29 years old, 1014 Sharon street, from the excitement arising from the fire and his energetic efforts to have as much of the contents of the house as was possible, was overcome by smoke. He dropped to the ground, but was revived within a few minutes. Yesterday he was said to be experiencing no serious after effects of the blaze.
Chief Klein suffered delay in reaching the trouble when he sought to "push" his engine, which had just been equipped with new cylinders, giving it more gas as he raced south on Main street, the pistons suddenly stuck and he was forced to bring up with a wide swerve in front of the Lewis Knitting company's plant. After making adjustments he traveled the remainder of the distance at only about a quarter the ordinary speed made on such runs.
The new auto hose truck, just installed at the Spring Brook station, came into prominence in a way similar to the big machine at the west side station did soon after it had been purchased. The Julius Tetzelatz driving down Main street, turned onto Racine street at a fast clip. The chains failed to grip and in its wild swerve it struck and snapped a telephone pole just above the ground. The machine remained upright and neither Tetzelatz nor those on the truck were injured. The truck was undamaged by the firemen were fighting the flames. Mr. Oestreich stated that the building and the contents of the residence were insured.

LYMAN COOLEY DIES AT EVANSTON HOME
Noted Engineer Who Spoke in Janesville Several Years Ago Succumbs to Unknown Malady.
Lyman Edgar Cooley, noted civil engineer, known as "the man who made the Chicago river flow backward" died Saturday afternoon at his home in Evanston. Four physicians who attended him during his brief illness were unable to agree upon the nature of his malady, and an autopsy will be conducted.
Mr. Cooley had friends in Janesville. He spoke before a meeting of the Twilight club several years ago, and has visited in the city on several occasions.
Until about a year ago Mr. Cooley was consulting engineer for the Chicago sanitary district. He has been connected with the district almost continuously since 1885 and drew the plans for the drainage canal.
Mr. Cooley was born in Canandaigua, New York, December 5, 1855. He was graduated from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and later became professor of engineering at Northwestern University. Subsequently he gained note in various engineering projects and as a writer and editor of engineering subjects.

Hon. John M. Whitehead and Philip Whitehead, were hosts at a six o'clock dinner Saturday evening, given to some twenty-five men at the Whitehead home, 616 Garfield avenue. Philip Whitehead entertained the company with his experiences on the border, and H. S. Lovejoy spoke briefly of the work of the American Red Cross and the aims of the local chapter of which he is chairman. He urged the men present to give their support to the movement.
M. P. Richardson called attention to the local military organization and the lack of interest displayed by the public in their welfare. He suggested that those present make it a point to visit the armory and encourage them. By a vote it was decided to appoint a committee of which Mr. Richardson was made chairman, to confer with the Twilight Club relative to extending an invitation to the Second Separate Company to be present at a future meeting of the club in the near future.
Geo. M. McKee entertained the company with his legendarium and added to his laurels as an adept at tricks.

CONVERSIONS NOT ENOUGH TO INSURE GROWTH OF CHURCH

Reverend Pearson Urges Greater Personal Effort to Insure Christian Nation for Our Children.
"We are not discarding our own country at a rate sufficiently rapid to guarantee a Christian nation to our children." This was the warning issued by the Reverend J. H. Pearson of the First Baptist church in his sermon yesterday morning. "With 22,000,000 members supposedly charged with the task of increasing the church membership, there were only 450,000 of the population of 2 percent there is only a corresponding increase in the church membership of 1 1/2 percent."
There are so many of us that will exert all our efforts toward securing new members for some organization. Any such work requires the personal activity of the individuals; business tends out its salesmen to increase the number of people that use a commodity; politicians exert every influence to swell the party rolls; and we are constantly launching campaigns to increase their memberships. And all of these enterprises are carried forward by the individual efforts of the members. But in the church the responsibility for the growth of the church is placed on the shoulders of the church members, and even the pulpit too often trusts to the evangelist to bring in new members.
"There are people declare they feel like fools talking the Kingdom of Heaven to others. But is it not worth while to feel a fool for Christ's sake? We have been given this task. Are we to fail in it?"
"We all know the value of the personal appeal; we all realize how much more potent it is than any other propaganda. The early church grew by the personal appeal. We have reached an age of great organization; we have forgotten about personal appeal, and put our reliance in a few leaders. But these men cannot responsibly carry every year in the United States there are only two converts for every minister. In our own church there was but one convert for every eighteen members. The church must require the conversion of one person for every eight members. In order to do our part in this great work, we will have to bring in sixty new members a year right here in Janesville."
"Have we forgotten our task in disciplining the world for the Kingdom of Heaven? Can you not realize the tremendous result that would follow if every man, woman and child were to be converted? We have the opportunity; in every walk of life we are being called for work. Are we going to take advantage of it?"
"The first step lies in fitting ourselves for preaching to others. If we have made Jesus Christ supreme for ourselves, we can win others; we can show others the insufficiency of their own lives; we can impress them with the need for the Kingdom. Then we can expect to see the world converted. They will realize the lack in their own lives because they have not had Him."
"The world is lost; go and find my children who are lost in this God's message to us. It is the greatest task we know, because it is first taken over by Jesus Christ Himself."
"We are to be the fishers of men. Christ is counting on us. If we fail Him, the work will fail. But Jesus had no other plan than that we should succeed, that we should win the world for Him. He brought us into a true fellowship with Jesus; a fellowship of work, of service for Him. 'Go into the world and disciple it, and I am with you always,' is the message of the Sunday school and the church."
"Who can tell the results; who can foretell the great power lying in a greater Kingdom; who can predict the mighty waves of influence set up by the conversion of a boy or girl? Are we going to sit calmly by and watch men and women go down unconverted, or are we going to do our best and save all we can? The call is to us. We are to be the fishers of men. Individuals doing our best in bringing in new converts?"

The Busy Store in the Heart of Janesville.Purchase of Danish Islands Recalls
An Expedition to America in 1619

The purchase of the Danish Islands by the United States recalls the fact that a party of Danish explorers came to America a year before the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock.

After Columbus had discovered America, all Europe was curious concerning the New World. There was especially an eager desire to find a northern route to East Indies, which all Europeans counted "the land of gold and of sweet spices."

The Danish with the old Norse instinct determined for the interest of their country and for the love of exploration, to fit out an expedition. The Scandinavian, while he may not rule the wave, for the claim is made by their island neighbors that "Britannia rules the waves," although German submarines are today putting a big interrogation point after that line. Nevertheless, the Scandinavians ever among the bravest of the sailors, having furnished the sailors who have explored the poles in Amundsen and Nansen, and that it was the Danes who quickly showed the deceptions of Dr. Cook, the pseudo-discoverer of the North Pole.

Tals spirit was alive in the Danish breast in the early years of the seventeenth century. Hence it was that early in the year 1619 the Danish people fitted out an expedition which had two vessels and a crew of sixty-six, among the bravest of the sailors, having furnished the sailors who have explored the poles in Amundsen and Nansen, and that it was the Danes who quickly showed the deceptions of Dr. Cook, the pseudo-discoverer of the North Pole.

It was a unique expedition which left the shores of Denmark in the early spring of that year of 1619 on a journey which to those who know credits these Danish people with having sent an expedition across the Atlantic to North America a year ahead of the Pilgrims.

Captain Munck with his ships experienced no difficulty whatever in crossing the ocean. He had staunch Danish ships and sturdy, fearless Danish sailors who were God fearing men and though their pious chaplain, Pastor Rasmus Jensen, daily sought Divine help and guidance.

The expedition reached the shores of Greenland in July, 1619; but they were not seeking a resting but a passage via the northern seas to the sunny shores of the land of gold and spices—India; so they sailed on westward.

Several weeks later, or about the first of August, Captain Munck anchored in the mouth of the Hudson River on the west shore of the Hudson Bay. This was just nine years after Henry Hudson had discovered the same waters and named them after himself.

Deeming it wise not to go further north so late in the summer and that he might be ready to push his expedition in the spring, Captain Munck determined to make camp here for the winter.

One of the first things they did when they reached the shore was to engage in a special service of praise and thanksgiving, led by their chaplain, the Lutheran Pastor Rev. Rasmus Jensen. This was undoubtedly the first thanksgiving service conducted by a Christian minister on North American soil.

Here Captain Munck and his sailors built two houses which, with their ships, promised comfortable winter quarters. Game was plentiful and to hunt it promised exercise, recreation and food. But the story of that winter while it promised well in its opening chapter, ended most distressingly. It is told in detail in Captain Munck's diary.

This diary is published under date of 1624 and was republished only a few years ago. A Danish Lutheran pastor, Rev. Rasmus Andersen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., republished the facts in America.

All went smoothly for several months. Game and fishing and sports occupied the men. On Christmas day a full Christmas service according to the Danish Liturgy was rendered by Pastor Jensen, who preached probably the first Christmas sermon ever preached on this western continent. Salter like, after the services, there was jollification, feasting and frolic. Captain Munck gave a double portion of refreshments to the men, who made a jolly time of it.

Christmas past the days proved long and dreary, the weather becoming very severe. Scurvy and disease attacked the men, who began to die in increasing numbers. Pastor Jensen was a faithful shepherd, caring for his flock, preaching and ministering to them. He preached his last sermon January 25th, 1620, taking sick the same day. He died February 20th, and from that time on acted as chaplain of the unfortunate group, which became by spring reduced to five men, of whom Captain Munck was one.

The captain himself was so ill on Good Friday that he wrote his will and wrote into his diary this statement: "All the world good-by and I commend my soul into the hands of God." He lived, however, to go back with four of his sturdy Danes in the ship Lamperen and to see his diary published.

That was a remarkable achievement for these five Danes, after a winter of hardship and sickness, to navigate the ocean on a ship that required more than thirty sailors when westward bound. In doing this voyage of the Danes in their sailboat under Captain Munck are rivals of the modern Captain Koenig in his submarine "Deutschland."

Had Captain Munck and his Danish expedition not met with disaster in that dreary winter on Hudson Bay, who knows but that today we might be buying Danish Canada instead of the Danish West Indies.

DAIRY MEN OPEN
MEET AT MADISON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Feb. 5.—Butter and cheese manufacturers, who have created one of Wisconsin's most active industries will be present in large numbers when the meetings of Farmers' Week, under the auspices of the College of Agriculture of the State University, opens here today.

Many new problems in dairying have developed with the rapidly increasing cost of dairy products. Among these might be mentioned those of just payment for milk at cheese factories, use of creamery by products, and still more technical subjects of moisture control and substitution for rennet.

Throughout the course, the model dairy plant of the University of Wisconsin will be the center of disposal of visitors and illustrated lectures, practice lessons, demonstrations, and individual advice will be given by experts who have studied the industry from beginning to end.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Janesville, Wis., Feb. 3, 1917.

Janesville Gazette.

Gentlemen:—Who would guess that the school described below is a building occupied by twentieth century school children?

The room is small and low, and has windows on three sides. The floor is of soft pine, and the many knots protruding speak of the age of the building, while around the edge of the room is to be seen evidence that the floor was once painted drab to match the walls and ceiling which are of six-inch boards. The door has the scars left by several generations. A long, low stove occupies the center of the room, and on each side is a row of double desks. Sash curtains and shades are at the window, and some of the shades are badly worn and torn, some lack sticks at the bottom, and all are faded and streaked. A cupboard built in one corner from floor to ceiling, contains the library books and some other material. The blackboard is very limited and most of it very poor. During cold weather the children have to hang their wraps on one end of the building serves as a storeroom for castoff articles of furniture and equipment, and for a supply of sticks of wood. A few marks on the wall distinguish this from there are a few marks on the wall.

A jacket around the stove, but no ventilating system. A wooden water cooler stands in the floor in one corner and over it the drinking cups hang on nails driven in the wall. They are thus exposed to all the dust and germs which may be in the air.

The school is located in one of the richest farming communities in southern Wisconsin. It is safe to guess that the majority of the farmers in the district are traveling to school, and that the children who live in the district are traveling to school, and that the children who live in the district are traveling to school.

Most of these people have good homes, well equipped and furnished, fine, large barns, and valuable stock, machinery and automobiles. Why, then, are they so blind or negligent in regard to the physical and mental welfare of their school-going children?

Parents do not visit the schools and do not give to the school their thoughtful and interested attention; they do not realize what a wide gap there is between the school and the home, and those which divide the school and the home, and those which divide the school and the home, and those which divide the school and the home.

Every parent would spend an entire day in the school if his children attend, and another if some good city school, he would discover a difference not only in physical conditions, but in the spirit of the two schools. This difference is in the spirit of the two schools.

The work is tedious and uninteresting; in the other, the children are alert and joyous because they are interested in their own lives and experiences, and there is spontaneity because initiative on the part of the child is encouraged in every way possible.

When shall we have a school? Perhaps not until we have consolidated the schools, for then our teachers will be more mature and better equipped to adjust themselves to the position in life where they will be most useful and efficient.

Yours, in the interests of better schools for country children, "A VISITOR."

BRYAN MAY RETURN TO STATE TO AID IN DRY CAMPAIGN

HAS PLAN TO RAISE LAWMAKERS' SALARY WITHOUT AMENDMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 5.—Probably never before in the history of Wisconsin has there been so much public discussion and such widespread and intense interest in the various phases of the dry and anti-dry issue as at the present time.

The Bryan referendum bill on state-wide prohibition is the overshadowing issue before the legislature, and is a matter of daily discussion either on the floor or as to its bearing upon other matters pending. By state-wide prohibition is not the only phase of the wet and dry issue that is receiving attention throughout the state. While Assemblyman W. T. Bryan receives many letters every day assuring him of support from business men and professional men, and even labor unions, in all parts of the state, many of these letters are requests that he help the local drys in their fight for dry towns in the approaching spring campaign.

The question of license or no license probably will be submitted to the people at six or seven of the important cities of the state. Among the cities in which the drys plan to make a fight against license at the spring election are Ashland, Appleton, Beloit, Eau Claire, Janesville and Superior. Many of these cities have applied to Mr. Bryan to assist them in getting W. J. Bryan or other speakers of national prominence. Superior wants Bryan, and as an extra inducement for him to come they offer to arrange for him to speak also in Duluth, where the question of license is to be again submitted this spring. And Ashland, having heard that Bryan is to be in the state, has also asked for the commoner and promises to give him the largest crowd that ever assembled in Ashland or any other place in northern Wisconsin.

These are making to hold a Bryan meeting at the Auditorium in Milwaukee. While this is considered to be a bold stroke like boarding a lion, there is nothing wanting but the consent of Mr. Bryan, who has not yet been heard from.

Other speakers who will be asked to come if their duties in Washington will permit them to come are United States Senators Kenyon and Cummings of Iowa.

Valuable Guidance.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 5.—Assemblyman Turner of Milwaukee has discovered a plan whereby members of the legislature may have their salary increased without awaiting the adoption of a constitutional amendment on the subject. For over twenty years successive sessions of the legislature have been attempting to have the people raise the salary of the members of the legislature, which is now fixed at $500. Heretofore the plan has either been defeated in the legislature or by the people.

Turner believes that members of the legislature can draw extra compensation while serving as members of committees. The speaker of the house is, at the present time, allowed extra compensation for the fact that he is serving as speaker. When the revisor of the statute bill comes up for consideration this week, Assemblyman Turner will offer the following amendment:

"To the speaker of the assembly for his services as speaker and to each member of a standing committee of the senate or assembly for his services as member of such committee for the regular session only, five hundred dollars in addition to his compensation and mileage as a member, but no member shall receive compensation as a member of more than one such standing committee."

Under this amendment every member of the legislature would in reality draw a salary of $1,000 for the session besides his mileage. The speaker of the house would draw a salary of $1,500 because he serves as a member of the legislature at a salary of $500; as speaker an additional salary of $500, and he would also receive $500 as a member of a standing committee.

The socialist party is in favor of paying members of the legislature a salary of $1,000. At a meeting in Milwaukee not long ago it was voted that the socialist party, as a party, would pay the members of the legislature an additional $500 for their services in Madison.

VATICAN ASTRONOMER SUSPECTED AS SPY

Rome, Feb. 5.—Another American was suspected as a spy here today. He is Rev. P. J. G. Hagon, S. J., the Vatican astronomer, formerly of Washington, D. C.

For weeks the police have observed "suspicious activities" in the Vatican gardens. Every night a black robed figure appeared for a time on a bridge stretching between two towerlike buildings.

The stranger made weird motions towards the heavens. Afterward he disappeared into one of the structures. A mysterious noise generally followed his entrance.

The police believed the clergyman was signaling the enemy. Their investigation introduced them to Father Hagon. Official documents showed the 70-year-old astronomer to be an American citizen. The "suspicious activities" were only his astronomical observations.

HAZEL DALEY and BRYANT WASHBURN in "Skinner's Dress Suit," an Essanay picture which has just been released.

Miss Hazel Daley, who makes her first screen appearance with Bryant Washburn in "Skinner's Dress Suit," recently got a great deal of free advertising in Chicago. A workman who claimed that he had been blinded while at his work was about to claim damages of $3,500 from an insurance company. The company didn't want to pay, and employed Miss Daley to pull off a little movie stunt in the "blind" man's back yard. She raised her dresses very high in the presence of the workman and showed a beautiful ankle. The blind man stared. This evidence was used against the man in court with telling effect.

MARY'S NEXT.

And now we are coming to see Mary Pickford as the delightful little Rebecca in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." The play is to be a combination of the two stories by Kate Douglas Wiggin, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and "The Chronicles of Rebecca," so there will be a charming romance running through the play, and it is one that is well adapted to Mary's talents.

The story has to do with Rebecca Rowena Randall, a poor New England lass, who is placed in the care of her digging and hoeing truck gardens. All along the French front, around the depots and the cantonments and even about the dug-outs, The Associated Press correspondent has seen admirably laid-out truck gardens. At the beginning of the new year, there were 5,623 of these plots under cultivation by French soldiers, and the produce of these plots for the past year is valued by the army authorities at 13,000,000 francs at wholesale prices.

Nearly everywhere good results have been obtained and passing through the country parallel with the trenches the correspondent saw on all sides well-tended and flourishing beds of cabbages, Brussels sprouts, lettuce, leeks and other green stuff. Not only, however, are vegetables of all kinds grown by the men, but in some cases the soldiers have initiated small breeding establishments for the raising of domestic animals, and often while shells are whistling overhead the chorus is joined by squealing hogs and cackling and quacking hens, geese and ducks in the styres and runs erected by the soldiers.

STOCK COMPANY OPENS AT MYERS THEATRE

Compton-Plumb Stock Company, featuring a former Mrs. Jack Bessey, Open Three Day Engagement Yesterday.

"The Higher Law" was the vehicle chosen by the Compton-Plumb Stock company to demonstrate their ability to give a new meaning to vaudeville. That they have ability must go unquestioned. They scored a very distinct hit in this dramatic piece and it is safe to say that if the weather permits they will play to big business during the remainder of their engagement.

During the intermission between the acts the time was most agreeably filled by members of the company doing specialty acts that are in the same class as the very best vaudeville. In all this company gives a great big money's worth of show. According to the regular procedure of the company ladies will be admitted free tonight under the conditions as printed elsewhere in this paper.

EDGERTON FIVE TRIMS
BRODHEAD IN FAST GAME

Edgerton, Feb. 5.—The high school basketball team defeated the Brodhead team Friday night at Brodhead by a score of 37 to 36. The game opened with a rush. Edgerton led their opponents by twelve points in the first ten minutes of play. At this point of the game Brodhead began with phenomenal basket shooting, making most anything they attempted with the result that the score stood fourteen to fourteen at the end of the first half. The second half Brodhead got the lead and held it until the last thirty seconds of play when Clarke made a long pass to McIntosh, who succeeded in making another basket, which won the game for Edgerton. Williams made the start play for Edgerton, dribbling the ball the entire length of the floor through the opponents for a basket. Curtis of Janesville was referee, and called five fouls on Edgerton and six on Brodhead. Following is the lineup of the teams:

ELECTROCUTE NEGRO WHO PLAYED POKER TO SEE IF HE'D KILL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Columbus, O., Feb. 5.—Two negroes bent over a deck of cards in a cell in the Hamilton county jail at Cincinnati, July 24, 1916.

They played silently, slowly, precisely. Gently they watched each draw. No ordinary stakes would exchange hands at the end of the game. They were gambling away a woman's life.

And the guard, passing slowly by, saw only two negroes sitting on the floor, playing a game of cards. Rouben Ellis lost. He killed the jail matron, Anna Hart, with an iron bar, took the keys from her and with his partner, escaped. Ellis had paid the gambling debt with the matron's life. Tomorrow he is scheduled to pay another debt. At dawn he is to be electrocuted in the Ohio penitentiary here.

Ellis is the forty-sixth to pay the death penalty in Ohio. Frank Early, whose life was snuffed out here 15 years ago, was the first negro electrocuted in the United States.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have read with interest the numerous letters on being that have lately appeared in your column. I think your advice is excellent on many subjects, but I cannot understand why a girl must have a hundred per cent average in self-respect, reputation, etc., while a boy need not worry about what his average is.

A man is a cad who believes in a double standard.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My boy friend keeps saying he does not want Wednesday night dates and when I am talking over the telephone he talks real cruelly and even hangs up the receiver.

Do you think he is getting tired of me and wishes to drop me? (2) Do you not think it is ungentlemanly for a boy to refuse to go unless a girl wants him to when he has no reason other than he doesn't want to go?

(3) What should I do in the above case? (4) It appears that he is getting tired of you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What should I do when a boy asks me to go to a dance and I don't want to go? (2) How old do you have to be to be a dressmaker?

(3) How old should girls be out at night when they go visiting? (4) What is good for pimples?

DOT. (1) Tell him that you will not be able to go, and don't give a reason why.

(2) To be a dressmaker is not a matter of age, it is one of ability. I have known girls of seventeen and eighteen who have sewed for other people.

(3) A girl's mother should decide how late she wants her daughter to go out. She can judge from the age of her daughter and the place she is going, while I cannot.

(4) Pimples may be the result of so many different causes that what will cure them for one person will be useless for another. If faithful trials of external remedies do not benefit, a physician should be consulted.

A fine application of one ounce of glycerine, a pint of camphor water and a quarter of an ounce of powdered borax will prevent pimples in any event. This water is good for the skin. It must be allowed to dry on.

Household Hints

APRICOT SALAD.

Ingredients—One can apricots, one bunch celery cut into dice, one cup of nut meats chopped, one cup grated cheese.

Arrange lettuce leaves on individual plates, place two or three halves of apricots on lettuce, add celery, nuts, cheese and, lastly, two teaspoonfuls of salad dressing.

THE TABLE.

Favorite Meat Pie—Grease baking dish with butter, then spread a thin layer vermicelli (previously cooked in boiling water). Line the dish with a rich biscuit pastry. Put in layer of chopped oysters, season with salt and pepper (thick layer of any meat desired (chopped fine); pour over this some stock or gravy left from former cooking of meat. Cover with rich paste and bake in moderate oven.

When done turn out on platter. If when done oysters are used and equal amount of meat it will serve five to six people.

Escaloped Sweet Potatoes That Are Delicious—After paring, boil in salt water, then have a buttered dish, put in a layer, put over them salt, pepper and butter, then another layer, and so on. When dish is full pour over cream; put in oven to broil.

Creamed Potatoes—Boil small potatoes; when done pare, cut into dice, put in pan, add butter, pepper, salt and lots of good cream; set in oven to broil.

Individual Salad (German style)—Par-boil as many potatoes as desired, cut into small dice, add again as salt, bleached egg, cut into small pieces, celery cut fine. Use a dressing made of one cup (more if necessary) good vinegar, salt, sugar and pepper to taste, generous piece of butter or bacon, one egg (well beaten), a little sweet or sour cream; boil and stir until it thickens; add potatoes, egg, etc. Let all heat thoroughly (don't boil).

Mint Sauce—One cup granulated sugar, one-half cup boiling water; boil until thickens a little, add one-fourth cup vinegar (not too strong); after adding vinegar boil for five minutes, add chopped mint. Serve warm on lamb.

To Cook Cranberries—Before cooking, cut each berry in half crosswise and put in a colander, turn on under with pretty good force and wash out the seeds. After doing this it is not necessary to strain the cranberries; the bitter seeds will sink to the bottom and often have in lacking.

Berry Sauce—One-half cup sugar, one-third cup thick cream (if you haven't any, use butter and lard to get the size of a walnut), one egg, one cup butter, one level teaspoon soda dissolved in hot water, one (teaspoonful) baking powder; flavor with lemon and a pinch of salt. Add flour enough to mix together and roll out quite thin and fry in hot lard. This makes about three dozen cakes and they are just fine.

Potpie and Dumplings—Cook meat until tender, season with salt and pepper, add potatoes sliced about an inch thick (or use small potatoes, which do not need slicing). Have just enough water in to boil up over the potatoes when boiling fast, but no enough to boil over the dumplings when they are put in, or they will not be light. As soon as potatoes are in take a pint of flour, sift it over two small teaspoons cream of tartar, one of soda (or two heaping teaspoons baking powder), add one spoon of butter; thick add milk enough to stir very thick, so that when dropped from the spoon the dumplings will keep their shape. By this time the water should be boiling. Now wet the spoon, drop dumplings on top of potatoes, and cover. Keep tightly in fifteen minutes the potatoes will be ready to serve, and the dumplings will be "light as a feather."

Dandy Fried Cakes—One coffee cup sugar (granulated), one coffee cup sweet milk, four tablespoons melted butter, three teaspoons baking powder (sift), baking powder in flour enough to make a soft dough), two eggs (white and yolks beaten separately; whites added last), one-half teaspoon salt; season to taste. Use nutmeg and stir all together, add enough flour for soft dough, roll and fry.

Leftover Boiled Potatoes need not be thrown out if the family does not like fried potatoes. Just put them in boiling water for a few minutes until they are heated through, add a little salt to water, then serve any way you would serve fresh potatoes and the family will not know the difference. If you have only a few, add them to the fresh ones just before they are done.

GINGLES' JINGLES

SAME OLD RUT.

Why continue in the same old rut when things are breaking wrong? Why not make our stay a pleasant one and earth a land of song? We can do it if we think we can, we've got it in our power—it's a question only of desire.

Why on life's problems sour? We would be a good-for-nothing bunch if things came over soft, there would be some vacant rooms above, we would not need our loft. It's necessary that's made us all that we can claim to-day, made us of being grouchy, why then instead of being grouchy, why not face about and say, "it's as easy to be cheerful, as it is to pull a grinch," since it's work that hands the blessings, not reposing on a couch. We should all be very thankful that old Adam got in bad, for I fear we'd been of little use, but for a sinful dad, when the curse of toil was slipped to him, we was blessings in disguise, but like Adam work does not appeal, its presence we despise; we would rather worry on through life with doors to progress shut, than get out and hustle—face about and leave the same old Rut.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Scarlet Fever Pathology.

1. Is it possible for a third person to carry scarlet fever without him self having it? 2. Must one come into direct contact with the patient in order to be infected, or can it travel through the air across an apartment hallway, for instance? 3. Is scarlet fever the most contagious of diseases? 4. Do the germs live for years? 5. Would it be dangerous to have a person who is taking care of a scarlet fever patient visit in a house a mile distant after walking the distance? 6. My physician claims the danger is not from the peeling, and nose and mouth. Is that right? 7. The patient slept out nights, is not that risky in cold weather, or not that risky in cold weather, the patient is now quite well, but we have other children as yet immune.

ANSWER—1. Possible but I have never heard of an authentic instance. 2. Personal contact is probably essential, with the patient, with a convalescent or with a person who has a running ear or other complication long after the scarlet fever attack. 3. Well, the contagiousness is marked, but I can't say that it is more contagious than other epidemic diseases. 4. If some complication persists the germs (we assume there is a specific germ, it has never been isolated) may live many months at least. 5. A competent nurse or physician would not carry the infection under such circumstances. 6. Your physician is right. 7. The open air treatment has been found as helpful in scarlet fever as in most other infectious diseases. The notion of the "rash striking in" belongs in the museum of antiquities. The outcome in your case would seem to show that your doctor knows his business.

FAIR WOMEN AID WOUNDED TOMMIES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Orpington, Eng., Feb. 5.—The Princess Patricia of Connaught and Mrs. John Astor, the first wife of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, are among the teachers in the new manual training department at the Ontario Military hospital here. The Princess is a specialist in the use of chintz, and has taught a number of the men methods of using this material for the manufacture of decorative lampshades and similar small articles. Mrs. Astor has a class in wood-carving, her specialty being photograph frames.

Princess Patricia visits the hospital every Thursday, usually bringing with her an assortment of bright colored chintz which she has collected at various places during the week. For the use of the wounded men, it is essential that the fabric shall be, specially chosen for the definiteness of their design and the ease with which a convalescent man can manipulate the material and select the special features in its design which please him most.

The medical staff naturally welcome these occupations for the wounded men. They keep the men from brooding over their pain. The hospital was founded by the Canadian government about nine months ago, and now has about a thousand patients.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

THAT'S QUITE A COMMITMENT TO OUR LITTLE GROUP OF SERIOUS THINKERS

BOHEMIA

There is more Bohemia around the stove in a country grocery store on a winter night than there is in all the art hives of New York. In a country grocery store, everybody is comfortable and nobody is curling himself up uncomfortably on a lot of pillows trying to look comfortable. Everybody has been careless about getting his hair cut, but nobody has been consciously careless. There is good-natured, lazy, reckless, hit-and-miss conversation (and the same kind of tobacco chewing) and not any affected drawing. There is some good, honest fatigue and relaxation, and no put-on ennui. There is genuine ease, no mock ease. And everybody is a worker by trade, yet nobody is talking about his "work." There are characters, not "individuals." There isn't any incense. Uncle Henry Hopkins' corn-cob pipes, full of long grass, are an honest aroma through the place, and he is smoking it because he likes to smoke it, not for the atmosphere effect. There aren't any candles—the coal oil lights make a pretty good Bohemian half-glow, and smell more than candles, besides. There isn't any rarebit, but there are cheese and crackers which are eaten quite informally. There aren't any foreigners, but there are some darn good Americans—a species fast becoming extinct.

Some day we are going to Bohemia — and it is not going to be the Greenwich Village, Washington Square, New York, Bohemia.

ASHLAND BOY RETURNS FROM RED CROSS WORK.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Ashland, Feb. 5.—Lewis Warner, son of Harry B. Warner here, is on his way home today from France where he has been driving a Red Cross ambulance. Warner's trip here was a vacation advised by officers in Europe to give him relief from the strain of the war zone. He expects to return to the front in March.

Clothes. In spite of the fact that his friends eventually opened him up and spilled him all over the sidewalk, Caesar lived in happy times, especially with regard to clothes.

Clothes nowadays are all wrong. About the only thing they're good for is to spend money on and brag about. In Caesar's time one bodysheet and a bay wreath made a well-dressed man.

Souls felt free to drink their fill and go home when they they pleased, secure in the knowledge that their wives couldn't tell the difference between a nightshirt and a dress suit.

Those were the days when Mother chopped up Father's business garb for gaudy towels and Father retaliated by eating breakfast in a huff and wearing the tablecloth up town.

Men dressed in bed clothes and were happy, then.

A Psychological Problem.

Of interest to psychologists is the story told by a Boston woman, relative to her efforts to teach a child of three and one-half years the alphabet. The child mastered the entire alphabet with the exception of the letter T. "What letter is this?" she would ask, and each time the child would reply "Coffee."—Boston Traveler.

WHEN'S A PARK A PARK? LA CROSSE MEN WONDER.

La Crosse, Feb. 5.—Jai Crosse is wondering what it is supposed to do with Riverside park, its chief recreation spot. City Attorney Higbee recently ruled that the proposed industrial and good roads convention in which governors of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Iowa were expected to come cannot be held in the park. It is practically the only available place, the promoters say.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE

Woman Saved From a Serious Surgical Operation.

Louisville, Ky.—"For four years I suffered from female troubles, headaches, and nervousness. I could not sleep, had no appetite and it hurt me to walk. If I tried to do any work, I would have to lie down before it was finished. The doctors said I would have to be operated on and I simply broke down. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the result is I feel like a new woman. I am well and strong, do all my own house work and have an eight pound baby girl. I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which every woman dreads."—Mrs. Nellie Pismack, 1521 Christy Ave., Louisville, Ky.

Everyone naturally dreads the surgeon's knife. Sometimes nothing else will do, but many times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved the patient and made an operation unnecessary.

If you have any symptom about which you would like to know, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free.

"I have a family of five, sew, cook and do my housework and I became very much run-down in health. A friend asked me to try Vinol. I did so and now I am well and strong and my old time energy has been restored. Vinol has no superior as a tonic for worn-out, run-down, tired mothers or housekeepers."—Mrs. J. N. QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then a bad breath—dull, tired feeling—sick, headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Young people need clear complexions

If you find yourself "left out" because of a poor skin, and want a clear, fresh complexion, use at least once a day. Wash thoroughly with a warm, creamy lather of it, then rinse the face with plenty of cold water.

It does not often take many days of such regular care with Resinol Soap to show an improvement, because the Resinol medication soothes and refreshes the skin, while the perfectly pure soap is cleansing it.

Resinol Soap and treatment heal eczema and similar skin eruptions and usually stop itching instantly.

MUSTEROLE—QUICK RELIEF! NO BLISTER!

It Soothes and Relieves Like a Mustard Plaster Without the Burn or Sting

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and usually the pain is gone!

Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, strains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frostbitten feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

UNIONIZED BASEBALL

Nan of Music Mountain

By
FRANK H. SPEARMAN
Author of "WHISPERING SMITH"

(Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons)

When the big train drew slowly, almost noiselessly, in, Nan took her place where no incoming passenger could escape her gaze and waited for De Spain. But when all the arrivals had been accounted for, he had not come.

She turned, heavy-hearted, to walk back uptown, trying to think of whom she might seek some information concerning De Spain's whereabouts, when her eye fell on a man standing not ten feet away at the door of the baggage room. He was alone and seemed to be watching the changing of the engines, but Nan thought she knew him by sight. The rather long, straight, black hair under the broad-brimmed hat marked the man known and hated in the gap as "the Indian." Here, she said to herself, was a chance. De Spain, she recalled, spoke of no one oftener than this man. He seemed wholly disengaged.

Repressing her nervous timidity, Nan walked over to him. "Aren't you Mr. Scott?" she asked abruptly.

Scott, turning to her, touched his hat as if quite unaware until that moment of her existence. "Did Mr. de Spain get off this train?" she asked, as Scott acknowledged his identity.

"I guess he didn't come tonight," Nan noticed the impassive manner of his speaking and the low, even tones. "I was kind of looking for him myself."

"Is there another train tonight he could come on?"

"I don't think he will be back now before tomorrow night."

Nan, much disappointed, looked up the line and down. "I rode in this afternoon from Music Mountain especially to see him."

Scott, without commenting, smiled with understanding and encouragement, and Nan was so filled with anxiety that she welcomed a chance to talk to somebody. "I've often heard him speak of you," she ventured, searching the dark eyes, and watching the open, kindly smile characteristic of the man. Scott put his right hand out at his side. "I've ridden with that boy since he was so high."

"I know he thinks everything of you."

"I think a lot of him."

"You don't know me?" she said tentatively.

His answer concealed all that was necessary. "Not to speak to, no."

"I am Nan Morgan."

"I know your name pretty well," he explained; nothing seemed to disturb his smile.

"And I came in—because I was worried over something and wanted to see Mr. de Spain."

"He is buying horses north of Medicine Bend. The rainstorm yesterday likely kept him back some. I don't think you need worry much over anything though."

"I don't mean I am worrying about Mr. de Spain at Medicine Bend," disclaimed Nan with a trace of embarrassment.

"I know what you mean," smiled Bob Scott. She regarded him questioningly. He returned her gaze reassuringly as if he was confident of his ground. "Did your pony come along all right after you left the foothills this afternoon?"

Nan opened her eyes. "How did you know I came through the foothills?"

"I was over that way today." Something in the continuous smile enlightened her more than the word. "I noticed your pony went lame. You stopped to look at his foot."

"You were behind me," exclaimed Nan.

"I didn't see you," he countered prudently.

She seemed to fathom something from the expression of his face. "You couldn't have known I was coming in," she said quickly.

"No." He paused. Her eyes seemed to invite a further confidence. "But after you started it would be a pity if any harm came to you on the road."

"You knew Uncle Duke was in town?" Scott nodded. "Do you know why I came?"

"I made a guess at it. I don't think you need worry over anything."

"Did you follow me down from the hospital tonight?"

"I was coming from my house after supper. I only kept close enough to you to be handy."

"Oh, I understand. And you are very kind. I don't know what to do now."

"Go back to the hospital for the night. I will send Henry de Spain up there just as soon as he comes to town."

"Suppose Uncle Duke sees him first. I am deathly afraid of his meeting."

"I'll see that he doesn't see him first."

Even De Spain himself, when he came back the next night, seemed hardly able to reassure her. When she had told all her story, De Spain laughed at her fears. "I'll bring that man around, Nan, don't worry. Don't believe we shall ever fight. I may not be able to bring him around tomorrow, or next week, but I'll do it. It takes two to quarrel, you know."

De Spain Laughed at Her Fears.

"But you don't know how unreasonable Uncle Duke is when he is angry," said Nan mournfully. "He won't listen to anybody. He always would listen to me until now. Now, he says, I have gone back on him, and he doesn't care what happens. Think, Henry, where it would put me if either of you should kill the other. Henry, I've been thinking it all over for three days now. I see what must come. It will break both our hearts, I know, but they will be broken anyway. There is no way out, Henry—none."

"Nan, what do you mean?"

"You must give me up."

They were sitting in the hospital garden, he at her side on the bench that he called their bench. It was here he had made his unrequited avowal—here, he had afterward told her, that he began to live. "Give you up," he echoed with gentleness. "How could I do that? You're like the morning for me, Nan. Without you there's no day; you're the kiss of the mountain wind and the light of the stars to me. Without the thought of you I'd sicken and faint in the saddle. I lose my way in the hills, without you there would be no tomorrow. No matter where I am, no matter how I feel, if I think of you strength wells into my heart like a spring. I never could give you up."

He told her all would be well because it must be well; that she must trust him; that he would bring her safe through every danger and every storm. If she would only stick to him. And Nan, sobbing her fears on by one out on his breast, put her arms around his neck and whispered that for life or death, she would stick.

It was not hard for De Spain next morning to find Duke Morgan. The difficulty was to meet him without the mob of hangers-on whose appetite had been whetted with the prospect of a death, and perhaps more than one, in the meeting of men whose supremacy with the gun had never been successfully disputed. It required all the diplomacy of Lefever to "pull off" a conference between the two which should not from the start be hopeless, because of a crowd of Duke's partisans whose presence would egg him on, to suite of everything, to a combat.

But toward eleven o'clock in the morning, De Spain having been concealed like a circus performer during every minute earlier, Duke Morgan was found, alone, in a barber's hands in the Mountain house. At the moment Duke left the revolving chair and walked to the cigar stand to pay his check. De Spain entered the shop through the rear door opening from the hotel office.

Passing with an easy step beside the barbers lined up in waiting beside their chairs, De Spain walked straight down the open aisle, behind Morgan's back. While Duke bent over the case to select a cigar, De Spain, passing, placed himself at the mountain-man's side and between him and the street sunshine. It was taking an advantage. De Spain was well aware, but under the circumstances he thought himself entitled to a good light on Duke's eye.

De Spain wore an ordinary sack street suit, with no sign of a weapon about him; but none of those who considered themselves favored spectators of a long-awaited encounter felt any doubt as to his ability to put his hand on one at incomparably short notice. There was, however, no trace of hostility or suspicion in De Spain's greeting.

"Hello, Duke Morgan," he said frankly. Morgan looked around. His face hardened when he saw De Spain, and he involuntarily took a short step backward. De Spain, with his left hand lying carelessly on the cigar case, faced him. "I heard you wanted to see me," continued De Spain. "I want to see you. How's your back since you went home?"

Morgan eyed him with a mixture of suspicion and animosity. He took what was to him the most significant part of De Spain's greeting first and threw his response into words as short as words could be chopped. "What do you want to see me about?"

"Nothing unpleasant, I hope," returned De Spain. "Let's sit down a minute."

"Say what you got to say."

"Well, don't take my head off, Duke. I was sorry to hear you were hurt. And I've been trying to figure out how to make it easier for you to get to and from town while you are getting strong. Jeffries and I both feel there's been a lot of unnecessary hard feeling between the Morgans and the company, and we want to ask you to accept this to show some of it's ended." De Spain put his left hand into his side pocket and held out an unsealed envelope to Morgan. Duke, taking the envelope, eyed it distrustfully. "What's this?" he demanded, opening it and drawing out a card.

"Something for easier riding. An annual pass for you and one over the stage line between Calabasas and Sleepy Cat—with Mr. Jeffries' compliments."

Like a flash, Morgan tore the card pass to two and threw it angrily to the floor. "Tell Mr. Jeffries," he exclaimed violently, "to—"

The man that chanced at that moment to be lying in the nearest chair slid quietly but imperiously out from under the razor and started with the lather from one unshaven side of his face with a neck towel, as he took his hasty way. At the back of the shop a fat man, sitting in a chair on the high, shoe-shining platform, while a negro boy polished him, rose at Morgan's imprecation and tried to step over the bootblack's head to the floor below. The boy, trying to get out of the way, jumped back, and the fat man fell, or pretended to fall, over him—for it might be seen that the man, despite his size, had lighted like a cat on his feet and was instantly half-way up to the front of the shop, exclaiming profanely but collectively at the lad's awkwardness, before De Spain had had time to reply to the insult.

The noise and confusion of the incident were considerable. Morgan was too old a fighter to look behind him at a critical moment. No man could say he had meant to draw when he stumped the card underfoot, but De Spain read it in his eye and knew that Lefever's sudden diversion at the rear had made him hesitate; the crisis passed like a flash. "Sorry you feel that way, Duke," returned De Spain, undisturbed. "It is a courtesy we were glad to extend. And I want to speak to you about Nan, too."

Morgan's face was livid. "What about her?"

"She has given me permission to ask your consent to our marriage," said De Spain, "some time in the reasonable future."

It was difficult for Duke to speak at all, he was so infuriated. "You can get my consent in just one way," he managed to say, "that's by getting me."

"Then I'm afraid I'll never get it, for I'll never get you, Duke."

A torrent of oaths fell from Morgan's cracked lips. He tried to tell De Spain in his fury that he knew all about his underhand work, he called him more than one hard name, made no secret of his deadly enmity, and challenged him to end their differences then and there.

Dinner Stories

One day Mark Twain was being shaved by a very talkative barber, and was forced to listen to many of the barber's anecdotes.

Stopping to strop his razor, and prepared, brush in hand, to commence again, the barber said: "Shall I go over it again?"

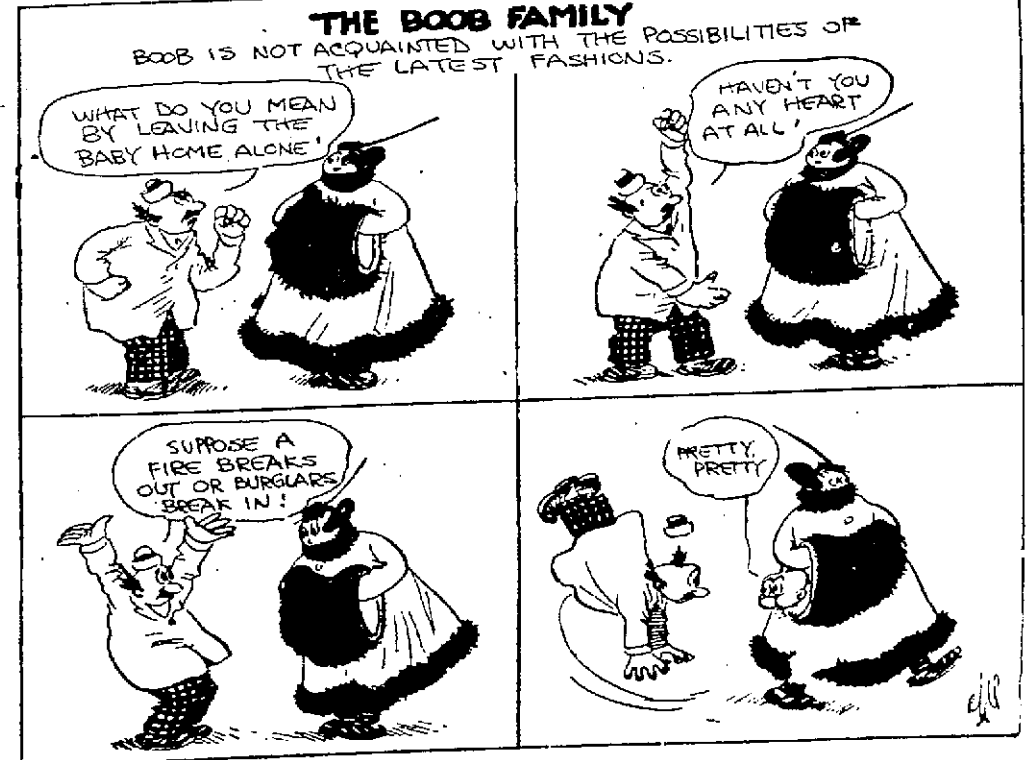

"No, thanks," drawled Mark. "It's hardly necessary. I think I can remember every word."

The new doorkeeper at the museum turnstile had learned a book of rules by heart before taking over the job.

"Here, sir, you must leave your umbrella at the door," he said to a visitor who had failed to hand over that article.

"But I haven't an umbrella," the visitor pleaded.

"Then go back and get one," said the keeper. "No one is allowed to pass in here unless he leaves his umbrella at the door."

The late H. H. Rogers, his most intimate friend, once took Mark Twain to see a very beautiful and valuable piece of sculpture. It represented a young woman coiling up her hair, and the workmanship was such that the owner's other companions stood open-mouthed in admiration.

"Well," said Rogers, turning to his companion, for his verdict, "what do you think of it? Grand, isn't it?"

"Yes, it's very pretty," said Mark Twain, "but it's not true to nature!"

"Why not?" inquired every one in surprise.

"She ought to have her mouth full of hairpins," replied the humorist, gravely.

The United States Government is a Partner in the Brewing Industry

THE partnership of our Government and the Brewing Industry was entered into during the Civil War for the purpose of increasing war revenues. The bill creating this partnership was signed by President Lincoln with the distinct understanding that the measure would be repealed as soon as war conditions justified its repeal.

As a matter of fact the Brewers of America voluntarily tendered the Government the sum of 50 cents per barrel on every barrel of beer brewed. This was done by the Brewers in a spirit of loyalty, fairness and justice—a willingness to bear their full share of the heavy war revenues. The United States Government accepted the Brewers' offer with the understanding that it was but a temporary relief measure which, in the opinion of Lincoln, would be repealed as soon as war conditions justified its repeal.

But that which was voluntarily tendered to the Government as a contribution—and was accepted as such—has since been imposed as a permanent tax. Not only that but the tax has been doubled and tripled. The beer tax was 50 cents a barrel for many years after the Civil War. The normal tax was later increased to $1.00 and at the beginning of the Spanish-American war in 1898, the tax was jumped to $2.00 per barrel. After the war was over, the normal tax of $1.00 prevailed until 1914 when the Emergency act raised the tax to $1.50 per barrel—and every Brewery in America is paying that sum to the Government now.

Can one partner in a business take away his partner's share without just compensation? Certainly not!

If you were in business with another and you could not agree, you would buy out your partner, or he would buy you out, paying a fair price for the business. There would be no confiscation—no taking the partner's property without fair or just payment therefore. Such procedure would be robbery.

In fairness or justice, then, can Government—be it National, or State, or Municipal—take away its partner's interest in a business without fair and just compensation?

When anyone's property or business—his source of income or livelihood—is taken away or destroyed by legislation—by an act of the voters—by your act, if you please—is not the one so injured entitled to compensation for his loss?

You would not want your business destroyed by legislation without compensation—would you be a party to legislation that would deny the same right to others?

Remember this—

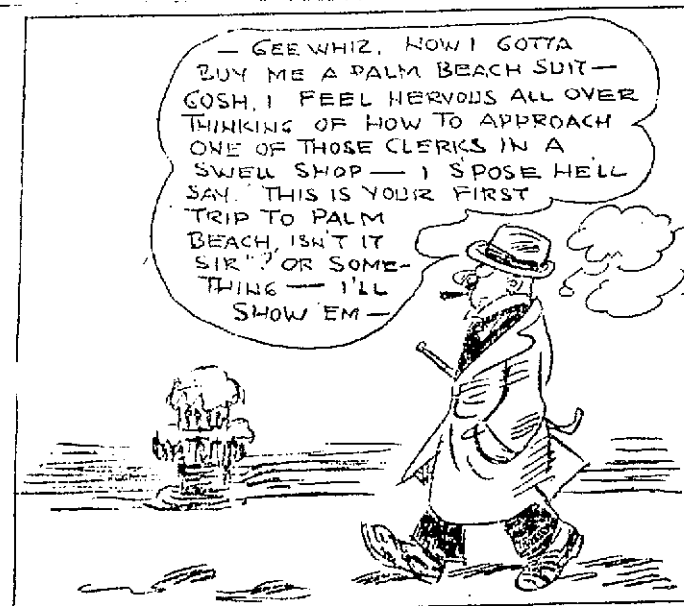

Compensation simply means that fair payment shall be made for whatever property is destroyed by the vote of the people.

Would you forcefully take anything that did not belong to you without paying for it?

Think it over!

WEDNESDAY NIGHT SEES THIRD SHOW OF ATHLETIC CLUB

Promoters Present Five Bouts at Exhibition—Meyers and Swann Appear Again.

The third boxing exhibition of the Southern Wisconsin Athletic association is to be held Wednesday night at the Madison Square. A card of five bouts is scheduled, which will include a bout at local business places as well as at several in Beloit, Rockford and Freeport. There will be a big crowd and the promoters are expecting a larger audience than those which featured the two opening exhibitions.

The main bout will feature George Adams, the classy "Kinky" fighter, who put the boot to Charles Henderson at Kenosha at the last show here. Adams is matched with Young Kick of Rockford, the boys to weigh in at 115 at three o'clock. The bout will be a close round.

The semi-main event is between Larry Check of Sheboygan and Ed McGuire of Milwaukee, eight rounds at 125. The Adams-Kick mill is bound to be watched with interest, perhaps more attention will be paid to the bout in which three local boys appear. Kid Myers and Harry Swann are again on the program and another Janesville "hope" just "found," is "Clay" Weber, the non de plume coming out from his dexterity in handling the gloves, but from his badly developed physique. His initial ring appearance will be against Charles Lyke, whose manager informed the S. W. A. A. press agent that "Clay" is a "front" and a "prairie." As such he is billed in the advertising. Their notoriety bringing nicknames are evidently well distributed when you realize that they are "Clay" and "Lyke" at 100 apiece and end-of-year either Christian way or other, to have each other for four rounds.

Kid Myers will battle Young Bell of Freeport at 115 pounds for six rounds. Harry Swann will take on Spike Beck of Beloit, four rounds at 124. In relation to his reputation as a fighter, the little City boy in the past is claimed to have been a "trouble maker" and as "spitting" decisions, he has done that also. All in all it looks like a pretty good card. More or less trouble will be expected in the match-making by the promoters, but their persistent efforts to put on for local fight fans the best bouts available has been rewarded, the carders say, in the signing up of Adams and Kick for the main show, and to include Check and McGuire and Bell and Beck, who will meet Myers and Swann, respectively.

Judge Runkel is newly elected president of the North Side Cycling club, and he has already obtained a bicycle race which will put the bike on the map again.

CARDS GIVE MYSTICS THEIR WORST BEATING

EASILY OUTCLASS CRACK CHICAGO FIVE AND DOUBLE THE SCORE WITHOUT TROUBLE—FINAL COUNT 55 TO 21.

SENSATIONAL PLAYING

Lakotas Show Best Form of Season and Excel in Floorwork, Shooting, Passing and General Play.

Excels in every department of basketball and showing their best form of the season the Lakota Club Cardinals swamped the Mystic Athletic club five of Chicago, Saturday night, at theatorium by a 55 to 21 score and administered to the Mystics the worst trouncing they have received in years. It was Janesville's game from start to finish one of aggressive and showing the brand of basketball which takes titles.

The startling showing of the Cardinals over the classiest of their playing previously this season was a surprise to their followers. Their game was full of snap and pep. Their floorwork, passing and shooting was wonderful. They had a whirlwind and with ten field baskets had as many to his credit as the entire Mystic team. Edler, from his guard position, secured six; Knapp got five, Fiedler four and Fiedler two.

Mitchell and Fiedler each counted with a field basket before Horn scored, to start the game. Then Edler tossed in one and shortly afterwards the Cardinals only foul throw opportunity the Cardinals had during the entire game. The count was 7 to 2 at this time. A pair of baskets by Horn and Edler for the Mystics trail one point behind and as they began to draw close the crowd began to advise the Cards to "get busy." They did, and before the visitors scored again had raised their total to 17. Horn tossed his second basket of the half, bringing the count to 8. The Mystics attempted strategy and shifted Churchill to center front guard and changed a forward and another guard. The change was fatal as it failed to prevent the Lakotas from tossing five more baskets. The half closed, 29 to 3.

A basket by Edler and Knapp played three in a row by Mitchell were secured before Horn tossed a pretty overhead and back goal. From then on he was the worst on the floor to watch. His record of four over the first half resulted in his slipping through for five goals during this half. Altogether he secured seven baskets. Foster, the other forward, got but three baskets and his scoring score in the last period was the only score aside from those made by Horn.

According to Manager A. H. Morris the Mystics came here in a bad condition. Their two regular guards, Osborn and Colby, who were described as "leeches" were not in the line-up. Colby is suffering with a badly wrenched shoulder which was injured in the Elgin game. Osborn missed the train Saturday afternoon at Chicago. He is a former I. A. C. guard.

Edler played a great floor game Saturday night. He was everywhere and shined particularly in his clever "feeding" the ball to Mitchell. "Mitch" had his basket eye peeled. So did his partner, Bill Knapp. Fiedler played his cleverest floor game of the season and he, too, started in the scoring. "Mika" showed up fine in the play. He has not away from his snail holding of the ball too long since Saturday night he was caught with it but a few times. Edler played his usual game, enforced with the general improvement noticeable in the Cards as a whole. He attempted a number of extremely long shots which should not have been tried and which would not have been tried if the Mystics offered any dangerous opposition.

During the second half it looked as though the Lakotas would triple the score, but Horn began to find the hole and his five baskets during this period was the only play which saved the Mystics from receiving a worse trouncing than they did.

The Cardinals are the first team which has so completely outclassed them in years. Manager Morris was emphatic in his statement that the Janesville team could easily defeat the I. A. C., but embellished the statement—"On the Janesville floor. At Chicago it would be different. You play a close game here while down there they are very close on calling every foul, both personal and technical, particularly the latter."

Following is the line-up and the chart of the game:

Scott, whose defensive work at short was a feature of the playing of the Red Sox in winning both the league and world championship pennants, is reported to have been offered a smaller salary than he received last year, and this is believed to account for his action in returning his contract unsigned.

MORRIS MILLER

Although Outfielder Duffy Lewis and Shortstop Everett Scott of the world champion Boston Red Sox have returned their 1917 contracts unsigned, George Foster, one of the star pitchers of the team, who last fall said he intended to quit baseball, has notified President Harry Frazee that he has decided to remain in the game.

Lewis, who is wintering at his home in California, says the figures in the document sent to him were the same as in the two-year contract which expired at the close of last season, and he feels he is entitled to an increase. He denies any contemplated action of the players' fraternity is responsible for his attitude. He has written the Boston manager a nice letter, he says, "and am sure the matter will be adjusted satisfactorily."

Capt. Adrian Anson takes little stock in the suggestions which have been made to increase batting. He says that if they give a batsman his base on three balls, some of the southerners will never be able to get the side out. "About the only change I would suggest," says Anson, "to make the game faster would be to require all the fielders, except possibly the first baseman, to do without gloves. Those huge pillows they wear cut down many a drive that would have been a hit in the old days. I have played first base and I don't see why they are necessary now, except for the catcher."

Few fans know that Dave Fultz, who is head of the Players' Fraternity, is one of the brightest men who ever played baseball. He was a star at Brown back in 1894-95. He was halfback on the football team of that institution. Then he started professional baseball and played for the American league for many years, finishing as a member of the Yankees. He is a full-fledged lawyer, and the ball players who know him say that he knows what he is doing all the time.

Melbourne Inman, world's champion at English billiards, has announced the conditions under which he will play a match of 13,000 points against four other British contestants. He will give Thomas Reece and Harry W. Stevenson 1,000 points in 13,000. He will concede 2,000 points to Thos. Newman and 2,500 points to Claude Funder. He will play under these conditions for $500 to $1,000 a side.

Manager Bill Donovan of the Yankees agrees with Johnny Evers of the Braves that the young players breaking into the game nowadays do not take their work seriously enough. When the Yankee recruits assemble at Alton they are in for a siege of hard work, especially at batting practice. "When young players get out for batting practice," says Donovan, "they resent it if a pitcher puts much steam behind the ball. They like to have him toss the ball up easy so that they can hit it out. The only way to learn to hit is to practice against real pitching. There are few recruits who take pains to find out their batting weaknesses and then set out to correct them. They like easy ones to hit at and not the fast ones. When Cobb first broke in he was so weak against left-handed pitchers that once they had to send another player in to bat for him. His weakness, and now look at his record against left-handed pitchers."

JAPAN SELLING MEXICO WAR GOODS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) Tokio, Feb. 5.—Considerable interest has been caused in Japan by the arrival and activities of three Mexicans, who represent the government of General Carranza, and who are said to be making extensive purchases in behalf of their country. According to the information at Tokio the prospective purchases include munitions of war—ammunition, rifles, and artillery—and a steamship in addition to machinery for agricultural and industrial purposes.

The Mexican agents who are in charge of Colonel Carpio, are reported to have succeeded in their quest for rifles and even for a steamship. It had been understood that they were negotiating for the freight steamer Kotohira Maru, a vessel of some 2,000 tons, and the announcement that this steamer cleared from Yokohama on January 2 with its declared destination as Saline Cruz, Mexico, was accepted in some quarters as proof that the negotiations were successful. The manifest gave the cargo as general merchandise and machinery, but the report was current at Tokio that the vessel had on board a number of rifles, estimated at 25,000 consigned to the Carranza government. This report could not be confirmed here.

In response to inquiries by The Associated Press the Mexican legation at Tokio denied that the Kotohira Maru carried any rifles. The legation admitted that the steamer had sailed for Mexico but said that her cargo was confined to general merchandise and machinery, consigned to a company in Mexico. The legation added that Mexico had been seeking rifles but had been unsuccessful, as all the available weapons had been purchased by the Entente Allies. The legation confirmed the departure of the Kotohira Maru, saying it was under charter to a Japanese firm.

It is believed here that the Mexican government recently opened a credit line of $1,000,000 for the transaction of general business. During the presidency of General Huerta the government of Mexico opened negotiations with Japanese firms for the purchase of rifles and ammunition, deposing some 3,000,000 yen for that purpose in the country. About 12,000 rifles, modeled after the Spanish infantry weapon, were actually delivered to the Huerta government, but before the consignments were possible, the European war broke out. This interfered with the delivery of further orders to Mexico. Some 50,000 rifles originally intended for that country were sold to Russia and France and the weapons that went to Russia are now being used by the Russian troops on duty in northern Manchuria.

ASSEMBLYMAN QUILTS; FAILED TO DRAW PAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Madison, Wis., Feb. 5.—While Attorney General Walter C. Owen is puzzled over the legal question as to whether a man who has resigned as a member of the legislature can draw all or any of his salary as a member and while State Treasurer Henry Johnson is wondering what sort of an assemblyman it can be that did not draw his salary the first day, scores of letters and petitions are coming to Madison asking Frank B. Schaettle to reconsider his determination to resign.

The case of Assemblyman Frank Schaettle has really astonished the older members of the legislature. First of all it is one of the most unique occurrences to find an assemblyman who did not take his salary voucher the first day it was ready. And secondly, Frank Schaettle purposely left his salary voucher with the state treasurer until he could decide whether his health would permit him to continue as a member of the legislature. Three months ago Mr. Schaettle went to Rochester and was placed under the care of the Mayo's. When the session started he came to Madison and has been here since under the care of a physician. Finally last week he resigned.

"I don't want the whole $500 salary," said Mr. Schaettle today. "If I took the money I would like to turn it over to my assembly district to pay the cost of conducting an election for the choosing of my successor. If the district did not hold an election, then I would like to turn the money back into the state treasury."

Since Schaettle has resigned without drawing the money, Attorney General Owen has been asked whether the money can now be legally drawn. Mr. Owen said it might take a couple of days to settle the question. Meanwhile petitions are pouring into Madison from Schaettle's district asking him to withdraw his resignation. The writers of some of these petitions say that he will be re-elected at the special election, whether he likes it or not.

It is rumored that Ben Derr, the brilliant half back of the University of Pennsylvania, will not play with the Red and Blue football team next year. He is said to have decided to devote all of his time to study. This proves to be the case, Coach Follwell will have to develop another star to take his place, for it was around Derr that the attack of the coming season was to be built. It was Derr who made possible many of Berry's long runs during the last season.

What makes Fatimas comfortable?

YOU'VE probably noticed that rather "oily heaviness" so common to many of even the most expensive cigarettes. That's bound to exist, no matter how good the tobaccos, if the tobaccos are not blended just right to correct it.

Of course, such cigarettes can never be comfortable.

Fatimas, on the other hand, are comfortable. The milder tobaccos in their Turkish blend are in such perfect balance with the richer, fuller-flavored leaves as to entirely offset all of that "oily heaviness" which makes so many other cigarettes uncomfortable.

With your first package of Fatimas you'll realize how genuinely comfortable a cigarette can be.
